Why is one fabric more expensive than another?

Is a more expensive fabric more durable?

Sunbrella® fabrics are priced by grade, with differences based on how the fabric is manufactured—not how long it will last. All Sunbrella fabrics are made from the same high-performance, solution-dyed acrylic fiber, so you can expect superior durability, fade resistance, and easy maintenance across the board.

The price differences come from the complexity of the design and the manufacturing process. Solid fabrics are generally the least expensive because they are simpler to produce on a standard loom. Stripes and basic patterns cost a bit more due to additional color setups and weaving steps.

The highest-priced options are Jacquards or textured wovens, which require specialized looms, more intricate weaving techniques, and more time to create. These premium fabrics often feature dimensional textures or complex patterns that add visual interest and luxury—but not added longevity.

No matter which fabric you choose, you're getting the same trusted Sunbrella quality.
